Profile

I was drawn to learning about programming because of its practical aspects, such as problem-solving and its logic-oriented nature. As a literature student, I found parallels between learning a human language and programming language. They both serve as tools for communication, whether with humans or machines. This sparked my curiosity.

After completing my intensive Web development boot camp and upskilling through a two-year self-paced learning journey, I am now a junior full-stack developer passionate about creating and maintaining functional websites and applications. With more than one year of freelancing experience in Web Development, I am eager to expand my expertise using the latest web development tools.
